

PAKISTAN CALLING...

Pakistan has fallen victim to the savagery of climate change! The nation is grappling with the worst flash floods in history; times over compared to the 2010 monsoon catastrophe. One-third of the country is currently under water; the unsightly horrors comprise washed away villages, crops, livestock, infrastructure, and properties. There have been over 1,000 deaths so far, while millions have been displaced and rendered homeless.

Responding to the calamity, the partner universities of USAID's Higher Education System Strengthening Activity (HESSA) project have taken several measures such as the setting-up of relief camps and holding of fund-raising campaigns with the involvement of their faculty and alumni. The institutions have also made an international appeal for donations in cash or kind.

To this end, the implementing partner of the HESSA project—the University of Utah—along with its consortium partners—the University of Alabama, and the Institute of International Education—is sharing the names and contact details of HESSA partner HEIs on their respective web portals for greater visibility, international outreach, and a coordinated response. Let us come together for the relief, recovery, and rehabilitation of the victims of a disaster that is far from over.
